Happy New Year! I am grateful to see every day, and especially a new January! I want to take the time and emphasize what you get from us here @ Angelic muziki.

I recently had a parent ask for their child to learn classical music and concentrated exercises, not just songs. I was quite surprised since we just finished a recital with quite a few pieces from The Nutcracker, but I explained that they just finished quite a high level of classical music as the pieces from the Nutcracker was written by a prominent Classical composer from the Romantic period and that the songs themselves build technique and many other unexplained benefits from reading music alone.

However, this made me realize that although I fill out lesson reports and do my best to communicate with parents, there may still be a little fuzziness. If you are musically inclined, you may not need as much of an explanation, but if you are not, or simply because you are not in the lesson, please don't ever hesitate to ask. So thanks to the parent who asked, it helps me to help you and most importantly the student.

We offer guitar, drums, ukulele and gospel piano, but in my instruments (piano, voice) & mainly piano, every student will learn how to read music...PERIOD. If they are in the kid's book, there are numerous worksheets and each song has a dedicated skill. If they are out of the book, they learn scales and chords catered to the piece they are working on. Piano is very mathematical and mechanical. They are getting a lot of "brain sweat" & motor skill exercise (yes even if they are 15!), because piano, especially when both hands play together, requires a lot of concentration and coordination. Thus the term “brain sweat”.

Rest assured that I am a musician, but also an educator. So again, if you ever have any questions as to what your child is learning or needs to work on, don't hesitate to ask.
